The human body has always been the foundation and source of my sculptures. For artists, "torsos" have been a main focus since the beginning of the human civilization.

I wanted to find new and more contemporary ways of showing the beauty and sensuality of a woman's body, a way to express emotion and vitality. My sculptures are alive and dynamic, almost moving through space. Sculpting just a few gentle, soft lines and shapes using vibrant colors, combined with the transparency of the glass is helping me to communicate the feelings, emotions and spirituality.

Torso VI, 18 x 13 x 4"

Torso XI, 21 x 13 x 4

Another and also very important inspiration for my sculptures is music. Music was my first introduction to art - my first love and is still a major influence. Combined with the beauty of the female body, the fragility and translucency of the glass and music I want to evoke a positive and lasting impression.

The George Billis Gallery marks its 20th year in the Chelsea Art district and its sister gallery is located in the burgeoning gallery district of Culver City in Los Angeles.
